

THE UNWINKING GAZE

NOTES

The Dalai Lama has reiterated his support for autonomy within the People's Republic of China and that he does not want independence.

The Dalai Lama in 2007 and 2008 has united countries across the world with heads of state coming forward one after another to support his efforts for the negotiations for resolution of the issue of Tibet.

The Unwinking Gaze is due to be launched from the end of March 2008 . It is opening the London International Film Festival, and has already been selected by a number of other festivals. It will be supported by a cast of notable figures across the media and the arts. Screenings are planned in London, Washington, New York, Los Angeles, Delhi, and most notably Hong Kong in July prior to the Olympics.

The Dalai Lama arrives in the UK in May 2008 prior to the Olympics. A series of high profile visits are planned all over the world for 2008. Many of his supporters hope that Beijing will invite him to attend the 2008 Olympic Games.
